Jericho Whitepetal

Formerly known as Jericho Kill of Abylon, Jericho Whitepetal is the winner of the first Collection of Ashes. She appeared in the now-retired legacy deck, The Path of Assassins, and was later released as the first Phoenixborn in the Time cycle, Jericho Reborn, with the new deck The Breaker of Fate. She has returned for The End of Argaia.

Jericho Kill
Card from The Path of Assassins

Jericho Reborn
Art from The Breaker of Fate

History[1]

Jericho was born into slavery, and trained in violence at a young age. Directed by her mother, she killed all of the Pirate Kings in Abylon. Some time later, she killed the Last Dragon. Her path of killing lead to her ruling over Abylon as The Assassin Queen, using its people as weapons.

She was the eventual winner of the first Collection of Ashes, rising to godhood with the re-unification of the Phoenix's powers. However, there, she learned of the feeling of guilt, and destroyed the Phoenix, fracturing time with her actions. This change in the timeline has caused most of the Phoenixborn to be returned to life as though they had never died, but some were not revived, and not all of the timeline was reset.

No one in Argaia remembers her as Jericho Kill now, except The Final Pythia. Her monikers also now include "of the Forfeited Throne," but she remains an isolated Phoenixborn.

Prior to the Red Rains, but after the Collection had started, she was seen venturing to Gorrenrock and nearby New Gobi. This stands out as strange as it was peaceful, but also because she has rarely left her home since rebirth[2].

She was also conspicuous in her absence as Rowan Umberend was conducting his research on the Chimera and Red Rains beneath Abylon.

When the last Chimera appeared, one bearing the shape of the Phoenix, she returned to Abylon to fight against the End of Argaia. There, or after the battle with the Chimera, she fatally wounded Rowan as punishment for what he had brought forth.

Conjurations

Jericho's two conjurations evoke imagery of speed - the slow Turtle Guard, and the faster Time Hopper.

In the fight against the Phoenix-shaped Chimera, she brought the Tusk Mount.

Card appearances

- Foresight
- Stasis
- Accelerate
- Blink
- Outmatch
- Fatal Strike
- Double Edge
- Annihilation (The End of Argaia Ruin aspect)
- Paradox (The End of Argaia Ruin aspect)
- Decelerate (The End of Argaia Rebirth aspect)

Quotes:

- “There is yet time for us to change.”
- “You exist, yes, but when?”
- “This timeline requires adjustment.”
- “Your déjà vu is another time’s echo.”
- “My skin tingles from its anger. It is hunting us. The Red Rains have awoken some lingering manifestation of the Phoenix's power, and that power now wants us dead.”[3]
- “The fiend punishes me for a choice erased by time.”
- “A cut for wrongs past and yet to come.”
- “The past has a longer memory than you.”
- “There is a time for rest. I'll let you know when.”

Official texts

Born in bonds, nursed on hatred, honed to kill. Like an assassin's arrow, from her mother's bow, Jericho flew. She stalked and killed each of her mother's slavers, and when the last Pirate King fell, she despaired. Today, Jericho Kill sits on the throne of Abylon. She has now become the wielder, and her people are her weapons.

-The Path of Assassins packaging, also [1].

Once she was known as Jericho Kill. Warlord. Assassin. Monster. But upon ascending the throne of God, Jericho was crushed with a feeling altogether alien to her - guilt. Reeling from the horrors she had caused, Jericho wielded her new power and tore asunder the heart of the Phoenix. Time has been broken and reset, and Jericho cast from the realms beyond. Can she change all that she previously wrought, or will she succumb to madness once more?

-The Breaker of Fate packaging

No one remembers the violent mercenary who called herself Jericho Kill. Indeed, it is as if she never existed. In the place of that ruthless killer is a new Jericho, one who knows mercy, self control, and who can tap into a previously unknown source of power. What has happened? For the common folk of Argaia, guessing at the motives of the Phoenixborn is an old and popular sport…
-PHG news article

References

1. https://www.plaidhatgames.com/news/774/
2. https://www.plaidhatgames.com/news/2021/06/23/forfeiter-throne-nigh/
3. Announcing the End of Argaia

Revision #17
Created 2023-01-11 04:43:44 UTC by Oxirador
Updated 2025-11-16 19:00:08 UTC by DubiousArchivist