Art from Law of Lions

The Phoenixborn of Lordswall, Odette Diamondcrest and her Sword of Virtue have protected it for many decades.

She appears in The Law of Lions, and returns to defend her hometown in The Siege of Lordswall.

History

Odette forged the Sword of Virtue herself, as well as penned all t ord has enforced the law of Lordswall for generations, and can disper equally.

Alternate art full bleed

Following the arrival of the new Red Rains, Odette joined several of the other Phoenixborn as an Adjudicator in Rowan Umberend's trial.[1]

Conjurations

Odette's conjurations carry out her judgement without hesitation. The Emperor Lion is capable of "creating" laws, while the Winged Lioness can easily hit her prey. The Lioness is also one of the few conjurations with a Recover value.

She is the most likely Phoenixborn to have created the Shining Stag Mount.

Official texts

She is the commander of the pride, the follower of the path, the righteous judge and the merciful servant. She emboldens the virtuous and strikes fear in the heart of the transgressor. She is Odette Diamondcrest. Her quill wrote Lordswall’s law. Her sword protected its gate. Her word sent forth its crusaders. She will see the world restored to divine order.
